

Incidents due to system unavailability

TITLE: A newborn girl child died due to unavailability of beds at three major hospitals in the delhi city

Description: A newborn girl child died due to unavailability of beds at three major hospitals in the city, after which the Delhi High Court had issued an order to the Health Department and Delhi Government to make available the information regarding bed occupancy and other medical facilities online.

Given the availability of websites and internet connectivity, it would appear justified if all information in this regard especially, the position with regard to bed occupancy at a particular point of time is made available to the public at large especially, patients and their attendants, to obviate distress to them and also to ensure availability of the best medical assistance at the earliest," the bench said.

TITLE: Harsh Mander: Why did hospital beds fall so disastrously short during India's second Covid-19 wave?

Description: More than 29 ambulances lined up on a sticky May afternoon outside a leading public hospital, the Rajiv Gandhi Government General Hospital, in Chennai. A team of doctors was outside, frantically checking the patients one by one inside the ambulances. All 1,618 beds in the hospital were occupied. There was no room to admit more patients, despite the entreaties of the patients.

Two patients died in the ambulances even as the doctors were checking them. The dean of the hospital Dr E Theranirajan told reporters.
